Total of $256,572 So Far at Sale of Gen. Ives's Collection.

PRINTS GO TO-MORROW

The feature of vesterday's sale of the collections of the late Gen. Brayton es at the American Art Association as the dispersal of the imperial Pollsh gs and other antique textiles. These night such good prices that the totals the sales now reach imposing figures. The art objects sold vesterday brought 69,255, making a total of $169,106 for his portion of the collection and as the brary sold for $87,466 the total to date r the sale is $256,572.

The two principal Polish rugs were ught by ex-Senator William A. Clark. gave $9,300 for No. 380 and $7,400 No. 379. Both of these rugs date om the first half of the seventeenth entury and both were exhibited at the an exhibition of rugs in the Metropolian Museum of Art in 1910.

The precise history of these rugs and their manufacture is not known. The tradition has been handed down by certain noble families of Poland that the ruge were made by an Oriental colony ince established in Warsaw, but certain writers on textiles maintain that they were the product of certain isolated nd eccentric weavers in Persia. The design in all of Gen. Ives's Polish rugs is intricate. The distinguishing feature is the lavish use of silver and gold threads for the backgrounds.

B. G. Kelekian bought No. 382 for $8,900 and No. 383 for $7,700. Both of them are important Pollsh rugs. He also gave $700 for No. 373, an antique Ghlordes prayer rug. Mr. Koushakji paid $3,700 for No. 384, an antique Ispahan rug of the seventeenth century. James F. Ballard bought No. 381, an imperial Pollsh rug, for $3,400, and imperial Polish rug, for $3,400, and Vital Benguiat paid $1,700 for No. 410, Renaissance velours of the sixteenth century. F. J. Marian gave $2,350 for Quette.

Other prices were: No. 441, a Steinway piano, to Mr. Ormond for $800;
No. 374, an antique Ghiordes rug, to S. S. Laird for $425; No. 372, a Ghiordes prayer rug, to Kajan Carpet Company for $530; No. 371, a Ghiordes prayer rug, to H. Reifsnyder for $700;
No. 362, an antique Chinese rug, to Miss.

By the end of summer it will be a difficult task to sell any imitation gems to Columbia's summer students. A new course in the study of gems has been arranged by Prof. James C. Egbert for the summer session, and it is said to be the only course of its kind given at any of the American universities.

Prof. Alfred I. Moses and Harry F. Gardner of the department of mineralogy of the graduate engineering department will give the courses. A special apparatus has been ordered which will enable the students to pick out the slightest flaw in the stones, and they will be taught to tell the genuine gems from imitations. Several of the specimens will be experimented on by the blow process.
